First term

In his first term, Trump often referenced his anti-interventionist pledge. During his 2019 State of the Union address, he said, "As a candidate for president, I loudly pledged a new approach. Great nations do not fight endless wars."

Tigers are awe-inspiring creatures and, together with Dragons, seem to have acted as protectors of clans (and their kings and leaders) in ancient China. The Tiger Hunt was an important activity in Shang times, and is mentioned in Oracle Bone Inscriptions: "The King hunted and captured two tigresses, one rhinoceros, twenty-one deer, two boar, one hundred and twenty-seven young deer, two tigers, twenty-three hares, twenty-seven pheasants. In the eleventh month." Rutt suggests for this Line Statement a Ritual in which animals were impersonated. Could the "big man" be a Shaman? Could this be a fragmentary reference to an ancient shamanistic performance, in which the Shaman is possessed by (and dresses up as) a Tiger Spirit? Such a ceremony might have been the prelude to Ritual Sacrifice of human captives, prelude to Divination, with the same big man, the Tiger-Priest, presiding at all stages. Sarah Allan writes of the Man-in-a-Tiger's-Mouth motif found on early bronzes, especially on the yue-axes—a man's head flanked by two symmetrical Tigers with encircling maws. These axes (the ancient graph for yue was an axe held over a man) may have been used for the ceremonial execution of humans or animals. As K. C. Chang had already observed, the open mouth occurs in many cultures as a symbol of passage to the other world, and the man held in the Tiger's Mouth may indeed have been a wu, a Sorcerer or Shaman. Tiger skins are also mentioned in early texts and in a Bronze Inscription, for use in court costume and chariot canopies.

Hiding (Altering) Enlightenment Follows After Drawing Water from the Well.

When Drawing Water from the Well is contemplated, evaluated, and weighed as an idea, an action, or an object of one's interests,

Then, the longer the period of time that the Well survives and continues in existence, and

The longer the length of time that one is Drawing Water at the Well,

- The more and more soiled, unclean, muddled, and dingy the Well will become;
- The more and more unpleasant, offensive, and indecent the Drawing of Water will become.¹

The longer the length of time that the Drawing of Water persists,

- The more puzzling, confusing, frustrating, and ineffective the Drawing of Water will become.

“Thank you for your attention to this important matter.” - Chris Carlin
The old man absolutely stole this from me after watching me compose countless emails using this exact tagline. ...

The United States Munitions Stockpiles have, at the medium and upper medium grade, never been higher or better - As was stated to me today, we have a virtually unlimited supply of these weapons. Wars can be fought “forever,” and very successfully, using just these supplies (which are better than other countries finest arms!). At the highest end, we have a good supply, but are not where we want to be. Much additional high grade weaponry is stored for us in outlying countries. Sleepy Joe Biden spent all of his time, and our Country's money, GIVING everything to P.T. Barnum (Zelenskyy!) of Ukraine - Hundreds of Billions of Dollars worth - And, while he gave so much of the super high end away (FREE!), he didn't bother to replace it. Fortunately, I rebuilt the military in my first term, and continue to do so. The United States is stocked, and ready to WIN, BIG!!! Thank you for your attention to this matter. President DONALD J. TRUMP
